Sarcomas are cancers that develop from bones or soft tissues, such as fat, muscles, nerves, and more. Because bone and soft tissues can be found nearly everywhere in the body, a sarcoma can start in any part of the body. Both children and adults can develop a sarcoma. It is rare, accounting for about 1% of all adult cancers.

However, sarcomas represent about 15% of all childhood cancers. Although rare, there are approximately 17,000 new cases of sarcoma diagnosed each year in the United States. Because sarcomas are rare, it is important to find physicians who have expertise with sarcomas. Visit sarcomaalliance.org for more information.

The Fourth of July, is a federal holiday in the United States that commemorates the Declaration of Independence, which was ratified by the Second Continental Congress on July 4, 1776, establishing the United States of America.
